TAKE 4,000 CAPTIVES

Success is Admitted in Berlin.—German High Command Relied Upon Strength of Position Defended by Silesians.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

(Copyright 1916 by A. P.)

With the British armies in France, the Germans were completely surprised by the morning's attack in the valley of the Ancre. An evidence of this was found in the fact that the British forces were preparing for breakfast at the very moment when the British infantry stormed the position. The British, after partially clearing the underground galleries, proceeded to enter their prisoners' breakfast, telling the captives that they would be fed when they arrived within the 5,000 Prisoners Taken.

A total of nearly 4,000 prisoners have so far been sent to the cages, including a regimental commander, who was captured with a dagger with a number of other officers. The majority of the prisoners are Silesians, and according to the British officers very inferior fighting material. The German higher command depended apparently upon the supposedly impregnable character of the Ancre line and its strongly fortified villages, rather than on the strength of the troops. The British believe that the Germans withdrew their best men for service elsewhere on the British front, where the more shallow positions, in which the defenders have been forced to stand, are less important.

The British losses were unusually heavy, owing to the unexpected ferocity of the German machine gunners at Beaumont-Hamel and St. Pierre Division.

Trenches Filled With Dead.

Large numbers of dead were found strewn in the wrecked trenches of the original main line. This line consisted of four parallel roads of trenches, the last being the western face of Beaumont-Hamel.

For some days past the sector attacked today and the area behind had been subjected to successive bombardments, which grew to a record yesterday and resulted in the demolition of a large part of the defenses. The garrison accepted the morning deluge of shells as part of the usual daily bombardment.

Many German Captives.

London, Nov. 14.—The number of Germans taken by the British in the fighting on the Ancre is now over four thousand, according to an official statement issued by the war office today.

Berlin Admits Loss.

Berlin, Nov. 14.—The stubborn defense by the German forces of the positions near the river Ancre, which were attacked yesterday by the British, caused the defenders to suffer important losses, the war office announced today. The capture by the British of Beaumont-Hamel and St. Pierre Division, with latter at connecting line, is reported.

Russian Troops Retire.

Paris, Nov. 14.—Russian forces have retired from the Gyrgo mountains, in northern Transylvania, to the Rumanian frontier, as a result of a series of German attacks, according to a statement today. The German official statement adds, "Bavarian and Austro-Hungarian battalions made progress, despite the tenacious defense of the Rumanians."

DOUBT SPY'S STORY
AT GERMAN EMBASSY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Nov. 14.—The German embassy does not believe that Karl Arnold Graves, self-styled international spy, obtained from the steamship Oscar II, as he says, the letters he is alleged to have used in an attempt to extort $3,000 from Countess von Bernstorff, wife of the German ambassador.

Graves will be arraigned for preliminary hearing tomorrow before the United States commissioner. The Oscar II arrived at New York November 13, having left Copenhagen October 22, according to the German embassy. The date of the letters taken from Graves is September 6. The packet containing the letters probably was sealed by the German foreign office, and that it is an unbelievable embassy official declares that the package could have been kept in Europe nearly a month and held before being dispatched.

Extraordinary efforts are being made to determine the identity of the messenger who brought the packet to the United States and the ship he traveled on. The embassy feels the messenger must have had the packet through some of the most reliable channels to avoid the loss.

Information on results of the investigations being made in Berlin is expected soon.

WEALTH BROKE ISLES PORTO RICAN CLAIMS.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Baltimore, Nov. 14.—The original causes of the economic crisis from which Porto Rico suffered from 1913 until June of this year, according to report submitted to the annual convention here of American Federation of Labor by Santiago Iglesias, president of the Free Federation of Working Men of Porto Rico, were due to the island's system of production and the concentration of wealth in the hands of a few.

"Over two-thirds of this wealth, wrested from our soil," he continued, "has been taken abroad, thus eliminating and neutralizing individual activities to the extent of converting the island into a region of serfdom exploited by and for the sole benefit of corporations that invest their capital in Porto Rico."

"We have 250,000 children entirely devoid of all school facilities, the army of unemployed is enormous, work of sanitation has been handicapped, and the community at large has been placed in a most embarrassing predicament."

The rate of loan to the poorer class in the island is said, are two to twenty and some instances even one hundred per cent.

There are thirteen unions in Porto Rico, with an aggregate membership of 12,000.

WOMEN WORKING HOUR LAW TO BE CONTINUED

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, Nov. 14.—The supreme court today, in a modified opinion by Justice Brandeis, stood by its former mandate in what is known as the Lange case, constraining the law affecting the hours of labor for women. The court last year determined the hour for labor on the hours during the day and eight hours at night, and where employment called for part day and part night, the court ruled eight hours was the limit.

In the previous ruling, the court held the state industrial commission did not have the power to fix the hours, but today declaring it would make a further ruling when a special case affecting life, health or safety of women, comes before him.

Up to Legislature.

Madison supreme court, "We will now have to go to the legislature for relief," said J. A. # SEEK PROOFS OF FRAUD IN VOTING

RUMOR FROM WASHINGTON THAT CLAIMS OF COLONIZATION IN DOUBTFUL STATES WILL BE TAKEN UP.

'DEMS' TO INVESTIGATE

Quiz Would Be Welcomed By Republicans Is Statement of Chairman Willcox on Hearing Report.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Nov. 14.—A senatorial investigation of alleged misuse of money in the presidential campaign was announced definitely today by administration officials. Preliminary plans have been made and a resolution providing machinery for inquiry is ready to be introduced soon after congress convenes next month.

It was stated today evidence was being collected, its details were to be disclosed. The plan is to call those actually in charge of campaign finances before the senate committee, and investigate details of their transactions. Various reports concerning use of money in certain states have come to democratic headquarters as well as republican headquarters.

Investigation into alleged attempts to colonize illegal voters in Indiana and West Virginia, particularly, was begun several weeks before election. In those states democratic leaders are planning to contest the election of United States Senators. Before the polls closed last Tuesday charges of corruption were being openly made by democratic chieftains, and predictions were freely circulated exposure would follow the election.

It has been charged by democrats that negroes were colonized by the south in states where the republicans triumphed by small majorities.

If contests are brought they will have to be initiated in the new senate, as each legislative body is the judge of its own members. The democrats will control the new senate by a majority of twelve votes.

THE LOWER HOUSE.

Representative Doremus of Michigan, chairman of the democratic congressional committee, today said that control of the next house of representatives was still in doubt. He said the democrats were certain of 213 votes, the republicans of 211. He takes it for granted there will be a large number of contests.

Any estimate of how the progressive socialists and independents will vote on organization, he declared premature.

Mr. Doremus saw no prospects of an extra session.

Koching precincts were among those depended on to help Wilson materially. The solid die vote, another democratic stronghold, has been virtually a tie, with about 500 to 600 to Wilson.

RECEIVES CONGRATULATIONS.

Washington, Nov. 14.—Re-election congratulations have been received by President Wilson from rulers of several foreign nations, but their names will not be given out until after the president's re-election is formally conceded by the republicans.

Cincinnati, Nov. 14.—It became known today that Thomas J. Corcoran, president of the Corcoran Victor company of this city, recently identified George Bush, New York as one of three men who, on Oct. 13, 1916, obtained $5,000 from him. Bush is believed to be a blackmailer, who, in connection with his operations, Corcoran said that three men representing themselves as federal officers called at his place of business and served him with a warrant, charging violation of the Mann white slave act. Corcoran insisted he was not guilty, but the alleged officers started to take him to jail. While on the way to jail they explained to him how the money Corcoran said: "I beckoned to an officer as I was paying over the cash, but he stood aside if he did not see me. As it is now believed Jackson is still alive."

ELECTION LESSONS.

It is interesting to note how the recent election strikes leading eastern publications that had hitherto considered that the center country east of Buffalo was famous from any interference in their plans for management of national affairs. The awakening has been a rude blow to their pride and the Wall Street Journal takes pains to point out that valuable lessons can be learned from the election.

There are valuable lessons to be drawn from the election for the presidency, even in its present undecided state. It has punctured some old fallacies, and it has done wonderful work in restoring our sense of values. It has proved two most important things. One is that voters cannot be delivered in blocks as they were ten years ago. The other is that there is a distinct shift of voting strength westward, although perhaps not so far west as some folks would assume.

It is plain, for instance, that nobody can deliver the labor vote. Mr. Wilson and his friends must realize now that it was not worth buying; and certainly never worth the price of the alleged Adams law. In the centers of industry, Mr. Hughes ran overwhelmingly better than his opponent, and this is true of even the principal railroad centers. The American Federation of Labor demonstrated once again that whatever it may offer in exchange for service legislation it cannot offer votes in any quantity to influence a national election in a material degree.

Then, again, the vaunted pro-German vote did not materialize. In any analysis of election figures point to a single place where the German vote made any substantial difference or swayed the balance, even where it was as delicately adjusted as the national balance of votes is now. Here is another ghost conjured up by the corrupted politician, which should be finally laid at rest. These autocrats within a democracy are mostly wind, and the election proves it. This at least is a national gain, well worth the price paid, wherever any on the next President.

And the old machines went to pieces for the same reason. Tammany Hall serves to point the moral even if it does not adorn the tale. It is absurd to say that it only gave Mr. Wilson 40,000 plurality in New York. The independent voters gave him that, and it is not demonstrable that Tammany Hall had anything to sell, or still less, to give it. At least it may complain of injustice when its hoary old machine is accused of "killing" the Wilson ticket. It is not guilty, and in fact after a century of mischievous activity Tammany Hall has degenerated into a benevolent society, dependent upon the subscriptions of those still credulous enough to be over in its ability to deliver goods which it no longer possesses.

There is another lesson in the westward shift of the voting power. It is too early to draw conclusions on this, but it is plain that New York and the New England states no longer dictate the results of a national election. Perhaps this is just as well. Decent Wall Street is shedding no tears over the obvious change.

COMING EVENTS.

Winter comes on apace and as a result there are many activities and social happenings being planned that will fill in the interim between now and the holiday season. It has been pretty definitely decided to hold a formal dedication of the new street lighting system some time in December, probably about the middle of the month. In fact, a committee is now at work on plans for a celebration of the event that bids fair to attract the attention not only of citizens, but many out of town visitors. Janesville has installed one of the most modern and up-to-date lighting plans in the middle west. Representatives of other cities planning to change their present system have visited Janesville to inspect it and then have copied the idea in full, even to the height of the poles. Certainly no one innovation in years has created so much attention and been as much a credit to the community as the removal of the poles from the streets and the installation of the "stagger" lighting system. It is worth a special demonstration and the tentative plans discussed would make it a novel celebration that would do credit to the city and attract considerable outside attention.

ENFORCING ELECTION LAWS.

The electoral system in this country has improved during recent years. Bribery has been greatly reduced. Repeating and other forms of fraud are comparatively uncommon. But efforts to limit the expenditure of money in campaigns have not been effective to the present time. Publicity of campaign contributions has been secured to some extent. But apparently these laws are largely evaded.

This is a matter where public sentiment controls political practice. If it comes to be generally regarded as unfair and disgraceful to spend big amounts on elections, it will be much easier to put an end to such practices.

The American people take such abuses tolerably. They curse the politicians, but fail to back up measures by which the latter can be held in check. Meanwhile the politicians are not particularly anxious to pursue members of the opposition party for violations of law. In a certain way they play in with their opponents. They are too frequently vulnerable themselves.

Clean, fair elections are a fundamental of a republican form of government. A violation of the election statutes is far more harmful and dangerous than highway robbery. It undermines public confidence in our government, and opens the door to all kinds of fraud. It makes our most vital institutions purchasable, and honeycombs our public services with graft and inefficiency.

Every sane public sentiment should demand the most rigid enforcement of every form of election fraud. Violations of the laws relating to campaign contributions should be energetically prosecuted. With election over, the illegal acts of the past campaign should be passed in review before the courts.

THE TAX EATERS.

It is a strange fact to note that among the men defeated for re-election to the state senate and assembly are a considerable number of the "tax-eaters" who opposed Governor Philipp and his plans for retrenchment of state finances and a business management of the state affairs. It is to be hoped that the coming session of the legislature will be both a short one and most harmonious, with results that will count in the long run as constructive legislation. With the "tax-eaters" absent from the floors of both houses this should be possible, although there are enough trouble-makers left who may cause untold mischief unless they are curbed at the start.

The people who say that running for office is an expensive amusement seem to think that all these defeated candidates are paying the bills for the dead horses they have been riding.

Although it is claimed that prices of foodstuffs will advance another 25 per cent before spring, very few city people can be persuaded to go out into the country and begin raising them.

The newspapers print the pictures of successful candidates for governor and congressmen, provided there is room enough after the cuts of the football stars have gone in.

No doubt some of the politicians who claimed the election so confidently had statements already prepared in advance explaining why they were defeated.

The congressmen deplore the evils of the spoils system but of course they all have a number of friends who would be a great help in the department.

It is understood that the office-seekers would be willing to have those two hundred jobs as airplane pilots awarded by competitive examinations.

The office-seekers are now preparing to show their fitness for positions by showing the number of voters whom they rounded up at the election.

The politicians, realizing the demand for business expansion, have solemnly covenanted with the people to double the number of jobs.

Elections are usually claimed to be bad for business, but it is realized that whichever side wins the pork product will be thoroughly marketed.

Go to Church Sunday is considered by many men the cheapest way of taking an immunity bath for another year.

It is high time to issue an ultimatum to Germany threatening to send her another note.

The Daily Novelette

MARKET DAY.

"Luna," said Prof. Pibbles, who was so absent minded that he had been known to walk along with his cane in his mouth, swinging his cigar. "Luna, our Shattsbury beans are ready for market. Would you like to ride to town with me this afternoon when I take them in?"

His wife replied that she would. "I would," she replied. And in the afternoon Prof. Pibbles harnessed old Catiline to the buckboard and they started off, all going well till they reached Huggins' corner and the professor happened to remember that he had forgotten to take the beans. So they returned and got them and started again, and this time the buckboard reached town without a stop. The first person Prof. Pibbles saw was his old friend Moe Guggins, the tiddlywink champion, who immediately inquired after his wife.

"Hello, Pibbles, how's the wife?" he inquired.

"Ask her, she's in the back of the wagon," replied the professor. And Guggins peered in, but the wagon was empty, except for the Shattsbury beans.

"Nobody in there," said Guggins. Prof. Pibbles looked, and then his face broke into a broad understanding smile.

"That accounts for that splash about ten miles back!" he exclaimed. He sold his beans and returned, and sure enough, there was Luna crouching as she waited for him at the edge of the puddle.

I'll not pick flaws in this my humble lot or leave me little flat; another's life may seem to me more smooth and gay and full of glee—perhaps it is at that.

I know not much, I could cry of "Heav'n!" but I do know this much, my dear, my little thoughts are spent not on the many reasons why no other is so sad as I—but why I am content.

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson
Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) We are two young boys. There are two boys in our neighborhood whom we like very much. Would it be all right for us to go with them on a picnic? Our mothers are good friends.

(2) What is nice for a girl to give a boy for his birthday?

(3) Would it be all right to take the boys automobile riding? One of us has a machine.

(4) Would it be all right for two girls and two boys to go to the park together?

(5) If the boys come to your house or you play tennis upon where you go. Girls of your age should not go to theaters or be out nights. If the boys come to your house or you play tennis upon where you go. Girls of your age should not go to theaters or be out nights. If the boys come to your house or you play tennis upon where you go. Girls of your age should not go to theaters or be out nights.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) My friend and I have had a disagreement, and I distinctly feel that he was the cause of it. Would you consider it unkindly for me to go to him first and try to explain or would you consider it his place to make explanations to me? In case I did go to him could you tell me in a general way how to word my explanation? (2) I would be decidedly unwise to go to the boys. You would compromise yourself.

(3) Usually girls go with one boy when they "pair off" in a crowd.

her up. I suppose in your idea he takes her as far as the house and shakes hands with her and bids her good-night. That is entirely wrong. This is (no) who is writing this to you an unknown party who was out with a girl who was reading some of your trash and let me tell you I got sick and tired of her on account I could not have any fun because she believed you and your junk and she was running out with all kinds of fellows she told me she could run with any old Tom, Dick Harry. Cause you printed it in the paper for her to read well I turned her down, three weeks afterward she wrote to me and said George please come over Saturday night and I'll have a nice far kiss for you I do not believe in Mrs. Thompson any more I believe in you. When I read this I said to myself she is cured and thank the lord. That's the kind of girl you need. Now she has cut all the boys out and goes with me and we have a grand time every night when we see each other, and another thing the way for a fellow to go to a girl is to walk behind her tip his hat and walk up and ask her if she will accept his company. If she don't like his looks she won't, and if she does want they become acquainted you don't have to have an introduction from 14 yrs to 45 is the limit of marriage now this is my opinion and it is the truth show this in your mouth and eat it.

wards of thirty dollars," continued Tom bitterly.

"That is less than it would cost to run a machine. You said so yourself," chirped the wife.

"Don't you ever take a street car?" asked Tom.

"Not when I can help it, you may be sure. I hope I have graduated from strap hanging. If you don't put those horrid bills away I shall get cross. There is no use of spending the whole evening with them. Come on. You can't make any more money bothering here." She pinned her hat on preparing to go out.

(To be continued.)

Household Hints

THE TABLE
Baked Beans—Navy beans, one pound; salt pork, one-half pound; brown sugar, three tablespoons; baking molasses, two tablespoons; salt, two teaspoons; dry mustard, one teaspoon. Soak beans over night in cold water. In the morning put layer of beans in bottom of casserole or bean pot, then layer of pork, sugar, salt and mustard, repeating until all is used, ending with pork on top. Mix molasses with water and cover beans with same. Place in the back of the oven with the front burner turned very low and bake all day. At noon fill the bean pot again with water and, if necessary, in the evening an hour before ready to serve. Beans should have a rich juice on them, if not allowed to bake too dry and fast.

Doughnuts—Potatoes, two (medium sized); butter, one-half cup; milk, one cup; eggs, two cups; sugar, one cup; flour, three cups (large); baking powder, two and one-half teaspoons; flavoring, vanilla or nutmeg. Peel, cook and mash the potatoes and while hot add butter and sugar and beat until very light. To this add the eggs, beaten very light, and sugar, well mixed. Sift flour three or four times and add baking powder. Add to the other ingredients a cupful at a time, and mix thoroughly. Roll, cut and fry in deep hot grease as for other kinds of doughnuts. When cool roll in powdered sugar.

Boston Brown Bread—Graham flour, two cups; sour milk, one cup; baking molasses, one-fourth cup; brown sugar, one tablespoon; raisins, one-half cup; soda, one-half teaspoon; salt, one-fourth teaspoon. Mix all, dissolving the soda in sour milk and put into a well greased one-pint coffee can. Let rise one-half hour. Have oven very hot when placing bread on it, and after being in two or three minutes turn very low and let it bake slowly for an hour and a quarter. This can be easily done while dinner is being prepared, and baked slowly while dinner is being served and the work is being done after the meal.

Mock Mince Meat—Green tomatoes, one-half peck; apples, one quart (when chopped); suet, one-half cup; raisins, one pound; brown sugar, two pounds; lemon, one; cinnamon, one teaspoon; cloves, one teaspoon; nutmeg, one-half teaspoon; black pepper, one-third teaspoon; salt, one teaspoon; cider (boiled), one-half pint. Cook one-half hour and can.

Bacon and Potato Omelet—One cup cold potatoes, chopped fine; one cup cold butter, four eggs, one-third teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper. Brown potatoes and bacon together in a skillet. Separate the eggs, beat the yolks with a little salt and seasoning, potatoes and bacon, mix well. Beat whites until light, fold into mixture. Cook gently as plain omelet.

Swiss Steak—With Worcestershire Sauce—Three pounds round steak (one inch thick), one tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, small piece suet, one-fourth teaspoon mustard. Wipe the steak with damp cloth, sprinkle with salt and pepper. Lay steak in a pan of flour and work as much flour as possible into the steak. Melt the suet in a frying pan, brown the steak on both sides, then add a pint water and cook on slow burner two hours. Add water as it boils down. When ready to serve, add the Worcestershire sauce and mustard. The gravy should be thick and brown.

Steamed Pudding—One cup brown sugar, one cup flour, one-half teaspoon salt, three-fourths cup boiling water, one egg, one heaping teaspoon of soda in it, one egg. Mix the flour, sugar and salt; add the beaten egg, then the water with the soda. Steam in medium-sized cake pan one hour. This does not make a "heavy" dessert.

Hard Sauce—One cup powdered sugar, two tablespoons (slightly rounded) of butter, one egg (beaten separately). Cream butter and sugar, add the beaten egg yolk, then the stiffly beaten white.

Sour Muffins—One cup cornmeal, two tablespoons sugar, one scant teaspoon salt, one even tablespoon butter, five cups boiling water, one egg. Mix the cornmeal, sugar and salt with a double boiler, add the butter and boiling water, stir until smooth and cook one hour. Turn into a mixing bowl and pour over it one-fourth cup of water to keep a crust from forming. In the morning beat it soft and smooth. Mix one and one-half cups cornmeal, two even one-half cups white flour, two even one-half cups baking powder and stir them into cooked meal, add one egg well beaten. Drop into gem pans. Bake in hot oven.

Celery—Farsley, Thyme, Summer Savory, Sage, etc., should all be prepared for winter use. After drying put them in cans or glass jars. Celery and parsley are especially valuable for soups and gravies.

How It Generally Works.
After saying, "I don't want to find fault," the average man proceeds to pick a flaw.

MINNESOTA COEDS SPEND MORE THAN LOSTY MEN STUDENTS

(COLUMBIAN HILL OF STUDENTS)
Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 14.—Girls students at the University of Minnesota spend more money than male students. This is shown today from figures compiled by the University. These show that girls pay $115 a year for clothing,inery and the like, and only $24 a year for books. Men pay $82 a year for clothes and $44 for books. Girls pay more for board and room. But for miscellaneous expenses and recreation, the boys, on the average "goats" for the girls' theatre tickets and the like, spend $62 a year while the girls spend $50.

It costs $646 a year to produce a graduated dentist, while a chemist gets by for $369 and an agriculturalist shakes dad down for only an average of $441.

WOMEN BEST ON COAXING MILK IS DISCOVERY

London, Nov. 14.—It has been discovered since women have been employed in farm work that cows are doing much better than under the care of men. An agricultural journal declares the women know instinctively how to handle the kine and keep the bovine nervous system in good order for milk production.

CHRISTMAS EFFICIENCY.

Christmas efficiency—that's a queer phrase, isn't it? One associates the idea of efficiency with cut and dried things. It seems almost an insult to apply it to things of the heart like Christmas.

But is Christmas chiefly a thing of the heart nowadays? Isn't it, in its modern development, partly business, and as such don't you think we ought to approach it as efficiently as possible?

Have You Done Your Shopping Yet? Of course, the first principle of Christmas efficiency is to do your shopping early. Not only for the sake of those in the shops, on delivery wagons and in the post office, to whom the phrase "the bitter day season" must seem the bitterest kind of mockery, but also for your own sake, that Christmas may not find you tired and on the raw edge of irritability.

"How early?" someone asked, when we were discussing this the other day. We all told when we had started Christmas shopping. She starts Christmas Day for the next year. That is, she makes her preparations. She has a Christmas notebook that she has kept for many years. It says she can pick up more suggestions for appropriate gifts around Christmas than at any other time, because people are admiring each other's gifts and saying what they wish they had had.

FLAGLER WIDOW TO MARRY KENTUCKIAN?

Mrs. Henry M. Flagler.

Mrs. Henry M. Flagler, widow of the millionaire capitalist who died three years ago, refuses to confirm or deny a published report that she is engaged to marry Robert Worth Bingham of Louisville, Ky., on November 16. Friends of Mrs. Flagler say she confided to them the fact of her engagement a month ago.

the after-Christmas sales and keeps it up all through the year, whenever she has an advantageous opportunity to buy. In her notebook is a list of the sizes of various articles which her friends wear, and she keeps this constantly in her shopping bag.

Another of her schemes is to buy handkerchiefs every year for the half dozen friends to whom she gives a slight remembrance, and whose needs she cannot know (we all have some of these on our list.) Thinking up something new every year is always welcome and she is constantly on the watch for them.

Getting Them Done Up When Bought.

Another neighbor contributed her efficiency scheme, which is to tie up each gift in its Christmas regalia as soon as she buys it and thus da away with that bugbear, the tie-up day.

Another saves a rest day for herself on December 24, by mentally putting Christmas one day ahead, and getting that terribly busy "day before Christmas" out of the way a day early.

I wish my reader friends would send their Christmas efficiency ideas to me so that I might pass them along.

OUR INTRACTABLE INNER TUBE

(Longevity Series) II.

Very early in life vast numbers of Saprophytic, not disease-producing, bacteria are present in the alimentary or food tube. This need not worry us, for even clean market milk contains from 10,000 to 100,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter, which quantity you might easily put in your eye if you wish to injure the eye. Tremendous numbers of these harmless bacteria are introduced in milk and other natural foods. They find conditions in the lower part of the food tube particularly favorable to their multiplication. The greater part of the bulk of the food matter in the alimentary tube is not dead or living bodies of these germs.

Good, clean milk, however, will sour and ultimately become unfit to drink, if not actually poisonous. That is to say, the natural activity of these harmless germs may eventually prove injurious to the human economy. And so it is with the bacterial flora of the intestine. Harmless under ordinary conditions, but capable of poisoning the host when conditions are extraordinary.

Among the bugs which constitute the natural inhabitants of the human alimentary tube the famous Colon bacillus deserves honorable mention, since this particular parasite has so much to do with the ponderous question of auto-intoxication or self-poisoning, so much to do with premature old age. Grow Colon bacilli artificially on potato or other vegetable medium, and in some of the growth into an animal and no dreadful consequences will follow. But grow the same bacilli on meat or animal medium and expect some of the growth into an animal, and serious illness or death will follow. It makes a vast difference, then, what you feed your Colon bacilli. They are tame, comparatively innocuous so long as their fodder is just right; but when the fodder is not just right, then these Colon bacilli revert to bacillary dysentery, and there is trouble for the thoughtless host.

Of course, the Colon bacillus is only one type of the many varieties of bacteria that inhabit the food tract, but it is a characteristic type of the species, and its reactions to varying circumstances teach us about all we need to know of the basic causes of self-poisoning and in proper manifestations. Metchnikoff was disappointed in the hope that his Bulgarian bacilli would crowd out or restrain the Colon bacilli in the intestine, but his experiment failed, and in the end the absurd exploitation of germ merchants and dairy firms, and the researches he stimulated will bring inestimable benefits to the human family. That every man make his choice of food with respect not only to the demands of his stomach, but also to the demands of the flora or fauna of his inner tube.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Tonsillectomy and the Voice.
1. Is your voice ever injured by having the tonsils removed? 2. Is water fasting? (Miss M. J. L.)
ANSWER.—No. No. No. No. Look at the camera, how skinny they are.

A Real Boy's Dimensions.
Our son is six and one-half years old. He is 46 inches tall and weighs 51 pounds. What is that below the normal? What will help him to develop?

ANSWER.—He must be a real boy. Average for six years is 45 inches and 41 pounds. Buy him a bicycle or a pair of boxing gloves.

Marjory. Tom opened the table drawer and gazed at the pile of bills. "You certainly know how to create an interesting variety in my monthly stipend," he remarked gloomily.

"Talk English, Tom," snapped Marjory. Tom threw his hat in the waste basket and spread out the contents of the drawer before him. "Well, will," he announced savagely. "Here is a bill for candy from McVeigh's for sixteen dollars. What do you know about that? Mine up. You know I have gone up, don't you? The seventy-five-cent boxes cost a dollar and a quarter and the dollar and seventy-cent boxes have gone up to two and a half."

"I would think you could curb your fondness for candy a little—"

"You helped eat it," interrupted Marjory, and pray what was your cigar bill?"

"About twenty dollars," admitted Tom.

"Well, I don't think I would complain about a candy bill then," Marjory looked at her husband with a sate expression.

"And here is a bill of five dollars for writing paper," continued Tom in an acid tone.

"Really, this is very disagreeable," said Marjory pettishly. "I supposed you knew that paper had gone up."

"But five dollars' worth, Marge," repeated her husband.

"It is economy," he lay in a good supply. The clerk told me so. The cost is advancing all the time."

"Bosh!" ejaculated Tom vulgarly. Marjory's nose went into the air and out this extravagant," resumed Tom. "We can't begin to meet our bills."

"What makes you try to pay them all in one month?" said Marjory sweetly. "Pay what you can and let the rest wait."

"Oh, so have I when it comes to that. I think my taste internally. I don't pay enough to have it first class. It does not pay to buy cheap things."

"Really, Marge, you speak it on so thick I am afraid every one will know you were a stenographer, or something of the sort. You speak and move like a shop girl spending a week's wages," he sneered.

HISTORIC SCENES IN OLD NEW ENGLAND

Scene of the Battle at Bloody Brook in Deerfield, Mass.

In passing through South Deerfield, Mass., autoists cross the historic old stream called Bloody Brook, a name derived from the frightful massacre by Indians which occurred there on the 18th of September, 1675.

In those days King Philip, sachem of the Pokanoket tribe of Indians, was on the warpath. He had so terrified the settlers of the Connecticut River Valley that the northernmost towns of Northfield and Deerfield were ordered abandoned.

In abandoning Deerfield the settlers had left large stores of newly harvested grain, and it was in quest of these needed stores that Captain Lathrop, with a picked troop of eighty men, proceeded to Deerfield from the town of Hadley, twenty miles south. The grain had been successfully procured and the party was some six miles out of the settlement of Deerfield when it prepared to ford a stream. The stream was bordered by thick woods, and tradition relates that the men imprudently placed their weapons in the wagons and scattered to gather the wild grapes which abounded. Thus disarmed, they were quickly and completely overwhelmed by the hordes of Indians estimated at 700 strong, by whom they had been ambushed. Of the eighty or more men in Captain Lathrop's command not more than eight escaped alive.

Two other scouting squads of Englishmen which were in the vicinity hurried to the scene upon hearing battle, but could do nothing except drive the Indians away so that the bodies of their comrades might be decently buried.

A monument now marks the scene of this horrible massacre, and the stream where the disaster occurred is known to this day as Bloody Brook.

EDGERTON YOUTHS SUFFER AUTO SPILL LAST SUNDAY

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Edgerton, Nov. 14.—Sunday evening five youthful young Edgerton gallants bespoke one of Joel Thompson's tin lizzies and hied them to Ft. Atkinson, where they basked in the smiles of the estimable young ladies. On the return trip, being still dazzled by the smiles of the said ladies, the pilot of the trusty boat inadvertently caused the lizzie to perform in a quite unusual fashion. She turned over twice. The top was annihilated, the windshield was demolished, the fenders were twisted, one wheel was missing and the motor was smashed, but they were out this morning and out on a new wheel and she's a good old car for the shape she's in. After the deluge Sunday night the quietest walked in from the spot where Lizzie refused to proceed, which was about two and a half or three miles away. They came in wrapped in blankets and robes, like aboriginal squaws, quite to the astonishment of Night Watchman Campbell.

Last night the local K. of P. lodge indulged in a game supper and put a wriggle in the trunk of estate. The grand chancellor of the state, Justice Eschweiler of the supreme court, and Grand Lecturer Libby of Fond du Lac, were guests of honor. Also Grand Officer Guard Gregerson of Stoughton.

City Treasurer H. H. Dickinson is busy with his semi-annual collection of water dues. He collects on each of five occasions approximately $2,200 at a rate of 12c per thousand gallons. A service charge of $1.50 per meter is made for each six month period. The largest users of the city water the past year were E. C. Willson, whose charges were slightly over $80. From that figure the amounts were gradually paid down to several users who used but a few gallons of water.

Edgerton boasts of the most efficient water plant in the state, supplying an excellent quality of water from artesian wells and quantities which never fail. The entire supervision of Superintendent James Reynolds and the efficiency of the management under him has made possible the low rate in this city, 12c per thousand gallons.

Edgerton thanks its water superintendent for the service at a lower rate than any of its municipal neighbors and gives more service in return.

BADGERS REHEARSE ATTACK TO BE USED AGAINST NORTHERN

Snow and ice covered field sends Varsity inside to go through attacks for Minnesota.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 14.—A snow-covered field and a blinding storm today Dr. Withington at Monday at Camp Randall when he called practice for the Badger gridiron men. The men were not given a rest, however, as the badger coach thought they needed a drill to be in condition for the contest on Saturday with Minnesota, so he sent them through a workout in the storm. Although the practice was not as stiff as usual, it gave the coach a chance to rehearse the plays which are being planned to be used in the attack on the Minnesota team. From the present weather conditions the badgers will be forced to do most of their work inside this week. This will mean that very little scrimmaging will be held under the open sky, and the men play on the snow-covered field.

Added to the adverse weather conditions Dr. Withington is confronted with the problem of changing his backfield as he has injured himself in a scrimmage last week. He has been declared unable to play by the medical authorities. The injury to his ankle was thought to be very slight at first, but it has developed into a bad bruise. This will mean that Krenz will take his place at fullback unless Dr. Withington decides to put Olson at that position. Krenz, a veteran of two years, has had plenty of experience and has been playing a good game during the past three weeks and is the logical man. This will mean that Olson, Simpson and Elder will then take care of the halves. Simpson and Elder are fully recovered from their injuries of earlier season games and will be fit to play class games.

The regulars were given a rest Saturday during the storm in spite of the fact that they were scheduled to play the All-Americans. Dr. Withington at the eleven o'clock hour sent the second string team against the All-Americans as he did not wish to risk his veterans on the slippery field. All the men are in perfect physical condition, with the exception of Berg, so the Badger coach is nursing them along until Saturday. The rest was welcomed by the first squad, as it was the first day they had had since the season opened. They will be busy from now on, however, as they have their hardest games remaining to be played. Following Minnesota on Saturday at Minneapolis, they play Illinois at Madison on the 25th in the final game of the year.

GAME ASSOCIATION TO ADD EQUIPMENT

Decide to Build Fence at Caldwell Farm for Care of Association's Pheasants.

At a small but enthusiastic meeting of the Rock County Game Protection association, held in the council chambers of the city hall last evening, a plan was drawn up for the raising of funds with which to build a fence around approximately two acres of land on the association reservation at the Caldwell farm, to keep the pheasants in. Since the association, or the Rod and Gun club, as many people know it, purchased a number of pheasants last year, there has been a large number of these birds, which are now running wild because there is no place to keep them other than a small coop.

Accordingly, it was decided to put in a fence to keep all the birds bought and raised by the association. For this purpose there is to be circulated a paper asking for a guarantee of funds with which to carry out the plan at once in case the association does not decide to do the work at their next regular meeting. It is expected that the fence will have been completed within a week or ten days. An arrangement made in the spring with the Commercial club, provided that the association would furnish half of eight pairs of pheasants to the club to be used as prizes for boys in the good roads contests conducted by the club during the summer. Because many of the boys are not in a position to care for the birds properly during a winter, the association decided to give the Commercial club an order on itself to furnish the birds next spring at a stipulated time.

It was also decided to send two delegates to the annual Madison convention of the Wisconsin State Conservation association, and to ask five members to pay their own expenses to the convention. The president, F. E. Green, and the secretary, I. F. Wortendyke, were asked to represent the local organization. The convention is to be held the fifth and sixth of December.

The treasurer reported that payment of annual dues to the state association was due. This amount of ten cents per member, or $22.50 was voted to be used for this purpose.

MANY ARE PICKING HARRY LEGORE AS SEASON'S ONE BEST FOOTBALL STAR

Harry Legore of Yale.

With the close of the football season even now almost in view various ideas about All-American selections are floating about and the season's individual star is being picked. They are plenty who not merely assert Harry Legore to be a remarkable football player but the one leading player of the year. Legore's punting, speed and all-round starriness in the backfield have meant much to Old Eli.

Sport Snap Shots MORRIS MILLER

High Jennings has started his winter campaign. He made two speeches last week, one at the celebration held in Scranton in honor of McNally and Shorton of the Red Sox, the other at Lockport, N. Y., where the close of the amateur baseball championship season was celebrated with a banquet and presentation of trophies.

Rufus (Lefty) Gilbert, who has managed and boosted the Terre Haute team of the Central league to the point of exhaustion without a fall, seems ready to desert, a sinking ship. He announces that he has offers from several clubs to act as manager and that he will decide on one of them soon. The indications he is done with Terre Haute.

If John McCloskey succeeds in his plan to organize a stock company at Dallas and take over the Texas league franchise from Joe Gardner, then the only Texas club under individual ownership will be that at Houston, where Frank Roberts and Otto own the club in partnership. Stock companies of fans will be in control in all other cities.

Instead of Bill Rodgers being made manager of the Portland Beavers to succeed Walter McCredie, the latest from Portland is that Bill will be sold or traded. Joe Evans is to be the team's second baseman next year. The McCredies also announce that there will be a general cleanup on the team that will mean the passing not only of Rodgers, but Vaughn, Fisher, Hagerman and Roche.

Replying to a statement attributed to Harry Blume of the Duluth club, President John Burnmeister of the Northern league says there has been no suggestion that he knows of for the Northern to lay off for a season. He says the league surely will be in operation next year. It had but four clubs at the finish of the 1916 season.

Soldier York of the Seventh United States Infantry, who pitched a game at El Paso against Joe Gardner's Texas league all-stars and gave them such a bad beating, has been signed by the Vancouver club of the Northwestern league for next year. Bob Brown's brother, Jim Brown, was in El Paso and saw York work. He allowed but two hits in eleven innings and struck out fourteen men in his game against the Texas leaguers.

Captain Til Houston of the Yankees and Ed Barrow, president of the International league, are at Dover Hall, the game preserve in Georgia, being fitted up by a syndicate of baseball men. They will go from there to New Orleans to the minor league meeting. Later a large party of baseball men are expected to gather at Dover Hall for a period of sport and recreation. It's a great life, this being a magnate or a player, drawing eight or ten thousand a year.

Chicago sporting writers announce a new rival for Vic Saler's job as first baseman of the Cubs. He is a youngster named McGinnis, picked up by Joe Tinker in Boston when the Cubs were there late in the season. His only experience has been with independent teams. He is a young giant, standing six feet two inches and weighing 180 pounds. However, Fritz Molwitz is as tall as that and weighs almost as much. Joe Tinker says "good judges" have told him that McGinnis is a sure nuff major leaguer.

The management of the St. Louis Cardinals announces that it has secured by purchase from the St. Paul Association club First Baseman Williams, who was drafted by St. Paul this fall from Charleston of the South Atlantic league. $85,000 was paid for Williams. The Cardinals also announced that they had but four clubs at the finish of the 1916 season.

ARMY HASN'T SCORED TOUCHDOWN ON NAVY IN PAST NINE YEARS

Not Since 1907 Has a Cadet Fallen Over Middles' Goal Line—Kicks Win Most Games.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] When the Army and Navy football teams go into action for their annual meeting at the Polo grounds on Nov. 25, there will be a goal besides victory for which the Navy probably will play as hard as for victory. Victory can come by drop-kicks, place-kicks, or safeties, but a touchdown is a touchdown, and the Navy hasn't put over one of that kind of scores on the Army since 1907 when Capt. Ben Douglas had the pleasure of falling over the Army goal line.

The middies have a stronger scoring team this year than has represented the Annapolis school for some time, so it is reasonable to believe they will be able to put a dent in the Cadets' goal. They were equal to the task of slapping a close score against the powerful Pittsburgh eleven, and with this to go on it is hard to see how the Army will be able to hold them entirely free from a touchdown. Many a football star has had a chance to plant a football between the Army goal posts for the Navy, but the Army goal posts have been down, but four classes have ambled their way through the school and out into their duties aboard Uncle Sam's battleships without seeing the Navy teams accomplish that touchdown. Defeat hasn't been their lot in those intervening years every year. Field goals have brought the future admirals victory three times in the seven games played since then. In 1908 Lange kicked a goal from place, but the Navy lost, 6 to 4, field goals counting four points each. In 1910 Dalton booted one over the Army goal posts and the Navy won, 3 to 0. In 1911 Dalton won by the same score. Brown made two field goals in the 1912 game and the Middies won their third consecutive victory, 6 to 0.

The 1912 game was the last to go to Annapolis. In 1913 Brown three times sent the oval over the Army goal posts, but it wasn't enough, the Army winning, 22 to 9. In 1914 and in 1915 the Army won.

PAST CROP SEASON GOOD FOR FARMER

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 14.—The 1916 crop season has been a most prosperous one for the Wisconsin farmer, according to W. F. Callender, field agent for Wisconsin from the bureau of crop estimates.

"From the standpoint of the general farmer in Wisconsin, the 1916 crop season just closed has been a successful one, especially when we take into consideration the prices which are prevailing for practically all farm products," said Callender. "His hay crop was large, in many sections of the state a bumper one, and was cured under almost ideal conditions; he has been able to produce plenty of corn for his pigs and his silo is filled with a much better quality of silage than he secured last year. His oats crop, while somewhat injured by the hot weather in July, yielded on the average of 37 bushels per acre; his barley crop was excellent, yielding 30 bushels per acre, for which he has been receiving good prices, and his crop of rye ranged from fair to good. His tobacco crop, it he had one, was heavy and of excellent quality, and he has sold it for more than double the price he received last year. Even the frost-killed tobacco has been sold at good prices. Favourable weather conditions have prevailed for the curing of the crop.

"It is only when we turn to potatoes that we find one of Wisconsin's principal cash crops approaching almost a failure in some sections. The average yield for the state as a whole is the lowest since 1904. In the greatest potato producing counties in central Wisconsin, the crop is extremely light, some fields not being worth digging, but even in this region we find quite a few farmers with yields of 100 bushels or better per acre. In the newly settled counties in northern Wisconsin good yields have been quite general. Yields of from 125 to 150 bushels or better per acre reported by the county agents are not uncommon and stories are told of new settlers being able to pay for their entire farm from the proceeds of a few acres of potatoes. The unusually high prices prevailing are enabling many farmers to realize as much or more from the short crop than they would from the usual crop with the usual prices obtained. In southern Wisconsin in many districts where potatoes are grown for local consumption only, the crop is so short that the farmers have not enough for their own needs and potatoes are being shipped in.

DOMINICAN ORDER HOLDS OBSERVANCE

Washington, Nov. 14.—Seven centuries of the Roman Catholic Order of Dominican Priars was celebrated here today at the Dominican College of Brookland. The three American cardinals, the apostolic delegate, Archbishop Bonzano, and bishops from all sections of the United States participated in the ceremonies.

The celebration, which will last a week, is being held in commemoration of the official recognition of the order by Pope Honorius III, seven hundred years ago. For in this year—1216—Dominick Guzman, a Spanish nobleman, founder of the order, then residing in Toulouse, received a letter from his Sovereign Pontiff praising Dominick and his little band of followers, "Champions of the Faith and true lights of the world." Certain land rights and immunities were then bestowed on the order.

Profiting through the general spread of Christianity throughout Europe, during the period of the Crusades, the order soon developed into one of the strongest monastic organizations of the Roman church. Dominican monasteries, established in all of the countries of Europe, soon became seats of learning and centers for the perpetuation of the fine arts.

At today's opening exercises the pontifical Mass was sung by Cardinal Gibbons. Bishop Shahan, rector of the Catholic University, delivered the sermon.

SHOOT DOWN FIFTH MACHINE BEFORE NAME IS MENTIONED IN REPORT

Paris, Nov. 14.—French airmen are not mentioned by name in the official dispatches until after they have brought down their fifth enemy machine. Up till then they remain anonymous.

The newest comer is Sergeant-Major Jean Baire, who is mentioned in another sense also, as he began his air fighting only in March at the beginning of the Verdun battle.

MORE THAN HALF THE STATES ARE NOW IN DRY COLUMN

More than half the states in the country, twenty-five to be exact, are now in the "dry" column. At the recent election six states went over to prohibition: Michigan, Nebraska, South Dakota, Montana, Utah and Florida. The latter two did not vote directly on prohibition, but legislatures pledged to the dry cause were elected. The territory of Alaska has also voted the saloons out.

BOYS AT BORDER NOT ANXIOUS TO RETURN

Barmy Weather of Texas Proves More Inviting Than Zero Winds at Home, Jansville Man Writes.

There is not a general clamor on the part of the state guardsmen at San Antonio to return to Wisconsin when there is the inviting prospect of a winter in the sunny south as against the sudden change to zero weather at home, according to Private Frank R. Kerzmann of this city, serving with Company L, first Wisconsin infantry.

"We have been at Camp Wilson for four months on the 11th of this month," says Kerzmann, "and we are all well and in the best of health. It is just like spring, the flowers and roses are in bloom and the robins are singing. We sure like it here and are sure of staying all winter. It's cool at night, but we have overcoats and some have sweaters over our coats. Our tents will be supplied with floors and walls and shall also have stoves so we will be well prepared for any winters."

"Today, (Nov. 6) we were out for a little walk, about three miles, from camp, and passed the morning digging trenches. We drill from eight to eleven and have school from two to three."

Employed Her Employer.

Dinah, who went home nights, arrived too late one morning to cook the breakfast, and her mistress told her that for each breakfast missed there would be a reduction in her week's wages. Dinah passively assented to this, but next day the mistress beard the maid next door say to her: "Fears the maid next door to work mighty late." "I gets to work when I gets ready," was the reply. "How do you manage 'bout de breakfast?" "Oh, I pays de missus to cook de breakfast."—Boston Evening Transcript.

Objected to Her Word.

Marie, five years of age, had been visiting us for several weeks. On several occasions she would say rather saucy things, and in rebuking her I would admonish her not to get "chesty." She usually was silent after this, but one day she asked me what I meant. Taken by surprise I stammered, "Why, I mean, don't get fresh." As quick as thought she said: "Then why don't you say fresh and I will know what you are talking about."

His Worst Book.

In "A Last Memory of Robert Louis Stevenson," by Charlotte Eaton, this curious incident is recorded: "What do you consider your brightest failure?" the novelist was asked. "Doctor Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," he replied, without a moment's hesitation, adding: "That is the worst thing I ever wrote." Yet in a standard book of brief biographies this is the one book title given under the name of the author.

As a means of disposing of your real estate, the little want ads are sure winners.

Salt in History.
In olden times, when salt was not so easily obtained as it is today, it was regarded in some countries as a luxury. This seems strange, does it not? At one time the Chinese made it into little cakes, stamped the image of the emperor upon it, and used it as money. In Arabia those who together ate food which had been salted, believed that this established a special bond of friendship between them. This led to the old saying: "There is salt between us."

Old Industry of Holland Town.
Alsmeer, Holland, is noted for its strawberries and clipped box trees. This local industry, which has been brought to a perfection unknown elsewhere, has been carried on for at least 200 years, as the village records show.

Profit by Mistakes.
Let not your mistakes and false steps embarrass you. Nothing is valuable in experience as the consciousness of one's mistakes. This is one of the cardinal means of self-education.—Carlyle.
